Dear Josh,

I have recently heard that Marko Zalokar is looking for a position, and it occurred to me that he might fit into your organization, since his interests certainly run along the lines of comparative biochemistry. He is a very original person, as you may know. He is presently at La Jolla in the Biology Department, in case you want to reach him. Sterling Emerson knows him well and would, I am sure, be glad to write you a letter about him. I don't know why Dave Bonner does not want to keep Marko at La Jolla, but I suspect a clash of personalities.

You may be interested in the enclosure. As Eliot has no doubt told you, the Russians did not show up at the biology session of the Warsaw meeting. I thought it was a fiasco.

Yours,

N. H. Horowitz
